Internal Revenue Bureau Takes Little or No Interest in Denatured Alcohol Law.

SCIENTIFIC REGULATIONS NOBODY UNDERSTANDS WHAT IS MEANT.

(Special to The Herald.)
Washington, Oct. 13.—Through the denatured alcohol law has been on the statute books for more than a year and a half, the American farmer, in whose interest it was supposedly drawn, has yet to derive his first benefit from its operation. Up to the present time the law has been non-effective, so far as the farmer is concerned, and has been of but slight benefit to him so far as the user of fuel alcohol is concerned. Part of the blame rests upon congress, and part on the departments charged with the enforcement of the law. The original denatured alcohol law passed at the first session of the Fifty-ninth congress proved to be badly deficient in that it failed to provide a means whereby farmers could manufacture alcohol from their surplus or waste products. That law benefited only a very few distillers, men who were already engaged in the manufacture of alcohol. Then when congress convened last year, attention was called to the rulings of the commissioner of internal revenue, and a second law was passed, specifically providing that farmers, either individually or collectively, might engage in the manufacture of alcohol, and stipulating the general conditions under which such manufacture should proceed.

Rules Need Translating.

The enforcement of this law falls primarily upon the commissioner of internal revenue. Unfortunately for the farmer, there is no one at the head of that department who has any interest in the denatured alcohol act. The late commissioner, Mr. Yerkes, promulgated a set of regulations governing the manufacture of denatured alcohol on the farm, but no one short of an expert distiller or a Philadelphia lawyer is competent to construe these regulations. They are scientifically worded, and the average farmer would not be the slightest understanding of their meaning after reading them through. The first reform, therefore, must come in the shape of a translation of the regulations of the commissioner of internal revenue. They must be put in ordinary English to be of any value. The new commissioner of internal revenue, only just sworn in, is not familiar with the duties of his office; he knows nothing of the denatured alcohol act, and so far as he is concerned, it is not his business to aid the farmers in the installation of alcohol stills that will meet the requirements of the law. But perhaps when he is more familiar with his work, the new commissioner will render this most essential service.

Overlooked by "Tama Jim"

Meantime the department of agriculture, the farmers' friend, has been caught napping. Usually Secretary Wilson is diligent enough to pave the way for the prompt enforcement of all legislation drafted in the interest of the American farmer, but his department overlooked the denatured alcohol law. In consequence, Secretary Wilson is not today prepared to instruct the department of methods of manufacture of alcohol; the most advantageous ways of utilizing interior crops and waste products, and the market, and he is not able to recommend to the farmers what manner of plants they shall install, either for making or distilling denatured alcohol. It should be said that this is a rare exception to the way things are run in the department of agriculture, and that in this respect it is largely due to the neglect of a bureau chief.

Secretary Wilson has investigations under way at the present time which will be valuable to farmers who desire to avail themselves of the provisions of the denatured alcohol act, and it is probable that reports of the department will be ready for distribution by the time the regulations of the internal revenue bureau have been put into plain English, but there will be no governmental assistance in this direction before next season; nothing can be done this winter.

Studying European Methods.

A representative of the department of agriculture has been spending the past summer in France, Germany and other European countries where denatured alcohol is made, studying the methods of manufacture from surplus or spoiled crops; another agent has been making a study of lamps, stoves and other devices intended for the use of alcohol, and department chemists are now experimenting with denatured alcohol to determine its relative heating and lighting qualities as compared with gasoline and kerosene. In addition, experiment stations of the department have been raising special crops for the manufacture of alcohol, in order to determine whether it will be profitable to produce alcohol on the farm from special crops, or to consume the waste products, as is originally proposed.

Much to be Learned.

But as pointed out by Secretary Wilson, there is still a great deal to be learned about denatured alcohol before the new law will be of much value to the American farmer. Discussing the question, the secretary of agriculture said: "I think it will be profitable to raise special crops in this country, especially in sections where coal and wood are scarce, for the production of fuel alcohol. In such communities as the Dakotas it might be made to furnish heat and light economy."

Cheap Fuel of the Future.

From all of which it is to be inferred that the time is coming when the manufacture of denatured alcohol will not only afford the farmer a market or a use for his surplus products, and simultaneously furnish him a cheap fuel, but it is bound to be several years before the manufacture of denatured alcohol on the farm is generally practiced. The industry would have developed much more rapidly had the two departments been prepared in advance to assist the farmers; all they have done is to make the supposed advantages of denatured alcohol, without rendering any assistance to farmers who wish to undertake its manufacture. But these shortcomings are to be remedied, now that Secretary Wilson has taken a personal interest.

PROMPTED BY POLITICS.

Count Okuma of Japan Admits Playing Petty Part.

Tokio, Oct. 13.—Count Okuma, who in the first stages of immigration troubles in America strongly disapproved of the government's pacific attitude, now practically admits that the radical utterances of both sides were largely prompted by politics. In an interview today, Count Okuma said that the American misunderstanding of the Japanese, who are astounded at the utterances of American newspapers, reports of the possibility of war, he said, have developed mainly from the fact that the Japanese are not familiar with the United States and very naturally are copied by the newspapers of Japan. While he believed that the Japanese are over-sensitive on the subject of Japanese immigration, he holds the opinion that the whole discussion is largely due to the fact that the United States is to have a presidential campaign next year. It is not likely that the immigration question will be seriously discussed or even become an issue in the coming session of the diet. The Japanese government believes that the entire question will be solved by the present discouragement of immigration and the strict observance of the laws.

COMMANDER BRIGGS TAKING TREATMENT

Paris, Oct. 13.—Commander John Bradford Briggs, U. S. N., retired, was picked today by the police while wandering aimlessly in the streets and placed in a hospital for the insane. Subsequently he was turned over to Captain John C. Prentiss, naval attaché at the American embassy, who placed him under medical treatment. A dispatch from Paris on Friday said that Commander Briggs' actions were causing alarm to his friends there. He seems to be suffering from the hallucination of persecution. That morning he was taken to a hotel and placed in a room where he declared that 600 persons were pursuing him.

NINETEEN BODIES SO FAR RECOVERED

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 13.—The bodies of nineteen members of the crew of the steamer Cyclops, which was foundered in Lake Superior, Friday night, off Deer Park, have been recovered and brought to Sault Ste. Marie. The bodies were recovered from the wreckage of the ship, which was found in a position which would indicate that it was struck by a mine. The bodies of the two firemen, whose names are not known, are still missing.

GROWING IN POWER.

Tangier, Oct. 13.—Letters from Mazagan, dated Oct. 7, rather indicate the increase of strength of the revolution in the south. The letter says the governor of Mazagan took from the custom house 350 rifles and 100 cartridges, and that the revolutionaries are now in a position to take the city. The revolutionaries are now in a position to take the city.

NEW CHANNEL OPENED.

Sault Ste. Marie, Oct. 13.—Water was turned into the new channel of the St. Mary's river at West Noddy today. The new channel is over two miles in length, 500 feet of which is cut through solid rock. It is 30 feet in width, with a depth at minimum stage of water of twenty-two feet. The new channel will not be formally opened until spring. The project has cost $25,000.

SOCIETY ON ROLLER SKATES.

This evening Salt Lake society will have the use of the Auditorium rink. Invitations have been sent out to about 300 persons. One of the features will be the first appearance of "The Great La Salles," who perform many remarkable tricks on the skates. One of the most sensational stunts he is to perform is called "The Coast of Death." On a steep incline built from roof to floor La Salles rides down at terrific speed and then makes a flying leap over twelve chairs.

Landing of Columbus on American Soil Will Be Commemorated.

MOVEMENT IS SUCCESSFUL CATHOLIC ORDER URGES OBSERVANCE OF DISCOVERY.

The movement which has been started in other states to make Oct. 12, the anniversary of the landing of Columbus, a state holiday, will be taken up in Utah at the meeting of the next legislature. The date on which America was discovered has been made a holiday in several states, largely through the influence of the Knights of Columbus, a Catholic secret society, formed to venerate the name of America's discoverer and to advance the interests of the Roman Catholic church. It has been decided by all state councils to make an especial effort to have the anniversary of the discovery of America made a legal holiday in each state. As soon as the legislature of each state meets, the states there is hope that the government will declare a national holiday on that date.

Occasion Is Observed.

In commemoration of the landing of Columbus on American soil a patriotic celebration was held by all the councils of the Knights of Columbus as near that date as possible. On Oct. 12 a special mass was celebrated at the cathedral in Salt Lake for the repose of the soul of Columbus and all departed Knights of Columbus. The evening of Oct. 12 the Knights of Columbus celebrated the occasion with a dance in the local council hall, which was attended by many of the members of the order. Yesterday the councils of Tonopah and Goldfield held a joint initiation, at which seventy-five candidates were made third degree members of the order. State Deputy W. L. Maginnis of the Utah council, who is the representative of the Knights of Columbus in the United States, was the guest of honor at the celebration. He held the position of the order, and to residents of the states where it has been made a legal holiday.

Reproduction of Landing.

A tableau representing the landing of Columbus was the feature of the Santa Cruz celebration. The representation was historically and artistically correct. The Santa Maria, the Pinta and the Niña, representing the fleet of Columbus, were rigged and manned after the fashion of the fifteenth century, and the costumes of the sailors corresponded with those of that date.

CAUCUS OF THE MEMBERS PROCEEDINGS WILL NOT BE OPENED WITH PRAYER.

Manila, Oct. 13.—Great interest is shown in the first Philippine congress, which will take place this week, and the arrival of Secretary Taft, which comes at an opportune time in the inauguration of the Philippine home rule. Already the contending political factions are showing great activity and at the caucus recently held the first brush occurred over a motion to have the assembly proceedings opened with prayer. This was defeated by one vote, on the broad ground that church and state should be kept distinct.

May Be Settled by Taft.

The caucus was attended by thirty-eight delegates. The action of the assembly on questions relating to the political future of the Philippines is expected to be determined largely by the opinion expressed by Secretary Taft, in his address opening the session. This is the view held by the Philippine congress, which is generally in favor of a specific pronouncement on Philippine policy. The course of legislative action will depend mainly on the result of the fight of the Gomez radicals for continuance of the national party.

Radical Program.

Guerrero, one of the native leaders in Manila, backs Gomez in his promise to secure the repeal of the drastic "flag and seal" laws. His repeal is carried through other radical measures probably will follow. The conservative element declared against any extreme legislation and the better class of politicians favor an ultra conservative course.

The governor general and the officials of the Philippine commission think that the chief activities of the assembly will be devoted to the enactment of legislation for the general improvement of the islands.

CARNEGIE ALWAYS BROKE H. H. ROGERS IN THE MARKET FOR MONEY.

(Philadelphia Press.)
Both Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Rogers have been pictured as possessing vast amounts of actual money drawn from the public and presumably hidden or placed away so that there could be most a miser-like contemplation of it. But the testimony of the Standard Oil hearing and the equally authentic testimony respecting Mr. Rogers' embarrassment go to furnish an object lesson showing to the public certain facts with which they have been unfamiliar, but with which men of affairs have had no lack of knowledge. For it is so universally true that the exception in the case of Russell Sage is a matter of comment and amazement that the greater men of affairs are frequently actually poor with respect to actual cash.

Mr. Carnegie himself is notorious in this respect, so that it is frequently said of him by his friends: "Carnegie never has any money." He has securities in plenty and one of the world's great incomes, but the security represents invested money and the income is either reinvested or else is distributed. Mr. Rogers for six months or more, notwithstanding his great wealth, has been a diligent borrower of actual money or its equivalent in credit.

When began the money stringency, world-wide in some of its features, so that in order to borrow money Mr. Rogers was compelled either to sell for what they could fetch securities, or to depend upon fresh supplies of securities, remained so that the money with the depreciation in prices. For the actual necessities of life, and even such relatively expensive manner of life as Mr. Rogers has chosen, it is, of course, no embarrassment for him that there should be money stringency. But so far as the necessary protection of his plans are concerned it does become a very serious question when, coincident with a great depreciation in prices of securities which it continued, must be followed by depreciation in value, there comes also a scarcity of money capital.

Stupendous as is the fortune of John D. Rockefeller, when one estimates it in accordance with the depreciated prices of securities of all kinds, nevertheless it is a fortune which he is sharing, to a great extent, with the entire country. His investment in Standard Oil securities represents a national industry, whatever may be said of the morality of its business conduct, which could not be greatly or even in small measure impaired without also reducing the earning capacity of some 200,000 people. It is not surprising, therefore, that the Rockefeller family, and in that way the earning power of them; without cutting heavily into our export trade and in various other ways seriously checking national, industrial and commercial activities.

MUSIC AS A MEDICINE.

(Louisville Courier-Journal.)
"Where the trouble is physical, such as failure of an organ, indigestion, congestion of the liver and stomach, music will give the best results," says Dr. Latson, editor of Health Culture. For this class of treatment the key of C major is particularly recommended by him. "But what composition should be played?" There's the rub. The simple scales might do it, or the diatonic exercise, but they serve the purpose completely? Nothing is more beautiful, of course, than the five-fingered exercise, taken slowly for an hour on the stretch, or will it do? Here is a demand for still further particulars from Dr. Latson. He must begin at once practicing the key of C major, and with the special ailments they are individually good for. He owes it to the race as a deed of philanthropy to do this. For instance, it is an established fact that persons have appendicitis. Is the key of C major the best suited to the treatment of this disease? If so, what key is it? And what specific work in that key? We suggest that he compile his instructions somewhat in this wise, the compositions cited, of course, being the best of the kind. Without Dr. Latson's authority and purely for illustration:

At his home yesterday evening former President Palm said: "The message received by me yesterday from New York and bearing the signature of President Small was so many evidences of fraud on the face of it that it was no surprise to me that the men took the action they did. Furthermore, I received a telegram from Deputy National President A. W. Copp of Oakland, Cal., which read as follows: "Pay absolutely no attention to telegrams and advertisements of any kind sent out to cause stampede. Letter coming. I have also received notices from many other sources saying that the men had received the message with distrust and that in all instances had decided to continue the strike until more definite orders were received from their national officers."

Locally, the men expressed the opinion freely that they were willing and able to continue the strike for some time to come or until a fair basis of settlement was agreed upon between the companies and their union.
